

In charge of your work

A practical coaching process, during which you write a plan for strengthening the control you have over your work and developing enterprising behaviour.

In charge of your work... is aimed at increasing your enterprising behaviour in your own work. You will start working on strengthening your personal control and ability to do things independently. You will write a personal business plan in which you set out what your added value is for your employer, your colleagues and/or your customers. You will do this under the guidance of an occupational psychologist (also self-employed).

This is In charge of your work

- combination of coaching and e-learning
- 3 (online) coaching interviews by a certified coach (experienced organizational psychologist)
- theoretical substantiation with the help of the Personal Entrepreneurialism model
- particular focus on enterprising behaviour in times of (significant) change

This is what you will learn

- you will learn which roles exist within your world of work
- how do you steer yourself to manage the entire working process?
- how do you continue to enjoy your work in times of change
- insight into the 4 quadrants of personal entrepreneurialism
- write a business plan

individual - group

1:1 - online

educational - preventive - curative

This is what you will achieve

You will use your personal entrepreneurialism and display enterprising behaviour in your work allowing you to achieve more at work. You will make a concrete plan about how you can be of added value within the organization and in relation to your colleagues and customers. You will set out how you like to work and best use your qualities.

This is what makes In charge of your work, unique:

- using the Personal Entrepreneurialism model
- guidance of an experienced organizational psychologist
- focus on taking charge of your work
- concrete business plan in relation to your added value for the organization
